annual Race on the Thames Between the Leading English Universities-A Sharp Contest.

LONDON, March 30 .- Oxford's coxswain snatched a victory from Cambridge to-day to a boat-steering race after the light a half at Barnes bridge, an advance which that clever steering meant everything. In this alone the dark blues (Oxford) had the advantage. Oxford beat Cambridge twofifths of a length, in 22:31.

The weather could hardly have been worse. Rain fell all night, and, with a strong southwest wind, made a discouragthe starting skiffs. There was little to $10,000 will be paid out in this one event choose between them in action or physique. At Colonel Willan's signal the crews caught the water together, but Cambridge's snappy start. Cambridge rowed thirty-four strokes to the minute at the start and Oxford thirty-five, which brought the dark blues abreast of Cambridge and gave them a fractional lead, which they lost before Hammersmith bridge was reached. Cheers arose from Cambridge's steamboat as their boat passed Hammersmith bridge half a 224 entries, including sixteen post entries. length ahead. On the Oxford steamer there was a deep silence and anxiety.

Cambridge lead, in spite of the constant quickening of the Cambridge stroke. On the Cambridge steamer the passengers following the race cheered despairingly, and Cambridge quickened again to thirty-six, then to thirty-eight and finally to forty. The Oxford bow lapped the Cambridge ern for a time, and the race hung in the balance. Oxford quickened to thirty-six and Cambridge struggled gamely, but lost her hard-won lead by inches, failing sig-nally in her steering at each turn, while Infantry, I. N. G., to-night. In the last two hundreds yards Oxford's bow began to show ahead and she relentlessly overhauled Cambridge, who rowed strong to the finish. Nevertheless deepthroated cheers arose as the crews flashed between the red flags at the finish and Cambridge saluted Oxford as they ceased rowing. Then, to the American spectators, came a surprising feature. The winning crew rowed to its landing place and carried in their own oars and boat, instead of being themselves carried in on the shoulders of their admirers, as would happen in the case of an American crew.

The times at the main points of the course were: Cravensteps, 2:28; mile, 3:54 (beating the record by 1 second); Hammersmith bridge, 3:30; Chiswick, 11:58; Barnes bridge.
